He said the country's growth, which is all set to fall to a decadal low of 5 per cent, is unlikely to go up this year, but it may 'probably stabilise'.

India and other emerging markets may take up to two quarters more for a pick-up in economic growth, he said.

The possibility of continuing tension between the US and Iran, which is leading to military skirmishes, poses an additional challenge for India as the price of the imported oil will go up, Roubini said.

He also noted that the population dividend is not an asset for India if the youth is going to be deprived of education, healthcare and most importantly employment and education.
